

Catharine van Ingen Architect, Microsoft Research
Microsoft Corporation

Catharine is a researcher at Jim Gray's Bay Area Research Center. She focuses on long term data archive and short term data storage by mere mortals. Prior to returning to BARC last year, she was the architect in Windows focused on storage management. She originated the Vista consumer backup project after losing a beloved digital picture.

Prior to joining Microsoft, Catharine worked for SGI, Open Market, and Digital Equipment Corporation.